AT DANVILLE.

A Successful Trotting Record. We are pleased to notice that our old friend and townsman, F. K. Kittredge of Woodsville, has been very successful with his green pacer (Ned Cole) this season, he having started him in ten races winning first money in every race. His last start was at Tunbridge, Sept. 1st, in a free for all race against Robert B. and others. Robert B.'s mark is 2.111/4 and he was driven by the veteran driver. Charlie Taylor, who is 97 years old. This was a five heat race, Ned Cole winning the last three. This horse is richly bred, goes without hopples, or boots of any kind, and his owner says has never felt the touch of a whip. Ned Cole's mark is 2.201/4, which it is thought is not near his limit as he has never been handled except by his owner. He has a smooth easy way of going and wonderful staying qualities and therefore a hard horse to beat in his class.

PROTECT THEIR ROADS.

European Countries Know the Value of Wide Tires. European countries have long discarded narrow tires in order to preserve and build their highways, and also because it is an economy in the use of the vehicle and the weight that a horse is able to draw, says the Good Roads Magazine. Wide tires are not only lighter in their draft than narrower ones under nearly all conditions, but they roll the roads smooth instead of cutting them to pieces. A four inch tire on a wagon carrying a heavy load

A NARROW TIRE ROAD. ally from four to six inches. Most loads are carried on two wheeled carts with a single horse, the loads weighing over two tons. With the new four wheeled vehicles used in France the tires are rarely less than six inches in width and the rear axle about fourteen inches longer than the fore axle, so that the rear or hind wheels run about one inch outside of the level rolled by

In Germany the law prescribes that all the wagons drawing heavy loads, such as coal, brick, earth, stone, etc., must have tires at least four inches wide. It is worse than useless to create expensive and valuable highways to have them only cut to pieces by the use of narrow tires as now used for the hauling of beavy loads in this country. When an expensive highway has been created it must be taken care of. and methods heretofore permitted must be changed in order to help maintain it. Wide tires are of the greatest value in preserving ordinary dirt roads.

The New York legislature has adopted constitutional amendment proposing to raise and spend $5,000,000 annually for ten years, or $50,000,000 in all. This amendment must pass the legislature again in 1905, and then it will go before the people for ratification or rejection. It can reasonably be expected that the measure will meet with popular favor. The people of New York have given the principle of state aid a thorough trial, and the results have been highly satisfactory. One of the objections most loudly urged against both state and national aid is that it will encourage local communities to neglect the improvement of their roads and depend on the state and the federal government to do the work for them. But this objection has proved to be purely imaginary. In no place where state aid has been tried has any such result appeared. On the contrary, aid from the state treasury only stimulates local self help. It arouses warm competition among the counties and townships to secure a share of the state aid funds. Instead of sitting down and folding their hands, as predicted, the local communities are raising a great deal more money under the stimulus of state aid than they did before.

time leads the United States as a granite producing state. The greatest increase for the year 1901 over that of 1900 was in limestone. One of the chief factors of the industry during, the year was the increased value of crushed stone, which covers granite, limestone and sandstone. This is attributed largely to the increase in building better roads.
